From the President...

This weekend marks the middle of season 2007 and many of our teams are in an excellent position with finals just around the corner. The battle for the Colin Campbell trophy is hotting up between the Mens Metro 3 Gold and Mens Metro 3 Black, the Mens Provisional 3 have hit a purple patch with their first 3 wins ever in so many matches and our Womens Promotion 2 are going from strength to strength under the tenure of Mods most eligible bachelor Reagan Siedl.

Off the field, special thanks must go to Cath Lucas and all those who helped organize Saturday night's wine tasting event. Im sure that all in attendance will agree that it was a wonderful night and everyone thoroughly enjoyed the event. The winner of the lucky door prize is ticket number 32, if you're holding this ticket, then COME ON DOWN!!! To the Mods bar to collect your prize. Thanks also to Jason "The Yak" Ogilvie for a stellar round of pub golf a few weeks ago on the annual Mods Pub Crawl, coming up next on the social calendar is the Cocktail Party (July 14th), make sure you don't miss this sentimental Mods favourite.

The Oxford Hotel is one of our long-standing sponsors and has donated some meal vouchers to the club, one for each team. If you are a team captain, organize a team dinner at The Oxford and book under the name Mods Hockey Club, then contact me to collect your voucher.

That's it from me for now, I hope that all of you are enjoying your hockey with good mates at the best club in Perth.

Cheers

Shane 'Ox' Ogilvie

ROUND 8 VS SUBS (RESULT 2-3)

The role models had a tough assignment this week, beat the top team Suburban. A role model does not know fear so they were ready for ALL OUT ATTACK, you will see the irony soon. Having lost the last 5 games to kids in dark blue the role models knew that they would need something special. An inspiring win last week had confidence on a high and with a set game plan all that was left was to execute.

The game plan:

1. Half court defence to unsettle subs free flowing game (see the irony yet???)
2. Start Nigel on the bench!! (can't have a drunk player on the field).

The game got off to a fast paced start with early possession shared as both teams were searching for rhythm. Both game plans were working well, Nigel still warming the pine, and in the 7th minute the role models forced the first penalty corner of the match. With Yak calling the shorts it should be obvious that we would use the drag flick. Just quietly the hale turf has more bumps in it than Wasley Street!!. The ball was played out beautifully by Jez, trapped dead by someone and flicked straight into the bottom right corner. ROLE MODELS 1, SUBS 0.

As they say in the classics, scoreboard pressure is the best pressure. The role models started playing some inspirational hockey.

The role models were getting a little bit tired and Subs pounced netting two quick goals, one very arrogantly coming from the k-zone!! Or is it the A-zone now?

After half time Subs netted another to go 3-1 up but the role models rallied back to peg one back and it all came down to a penalty corner after the whistle. Let me set the scene; 4 English blokes in the goal talking about cups of tea and stuff, one wearing a face protection mask. his husband must not want him to damage his face, SOFT!!! Anyway the variation was 'gonna' be an underarm slip to Jmac on the left. Having said that the push out was 'gunna' come out straight; it didn't so yak was FORCED to flick. It went high, the goalie just got a finger on it and the role models suffered another defeat.

Best role models on the day were Waz, Jez and Nige (maybe the bench is the best place for you hahaha)

MAIDEN CAPITAL-PULLINGER READHEAD LUCAS M1As vs WASPS – 0 - 0 DRAW

The scoreline belies a titantic struggle that was also pretty good fun to play in (the consensus from the Wasps guys was that was the best game they'd been in all season, too). Apart from that final metre - the width of the invisible forcefield that shielded the Wasp goal from our shots - we were sublime and a credit to our sponsors Maiden Capital-Pullinger Readhead Lucas.

Hef, to Ru, to Hef, back to Ru, to Chris, back to Ru, to Chris ... oh what a pass - it was magic. Especially as Hef virtually had three hands, what a lump!

Panda - scarily at home in the fullback line.

Locky - not one easy touch for their right wing.

Gooders - dramatic saves, a commanding presence.

Dingo - toying with the defence.

Simon - cutting off eveything that came by.

The Former First #!*&# Lady - calm and relaxed, like a aromatherapy saleswomen.

Beaz - creating space you could drive a truck into.

Lads, its so close you could almost grasp it, feel it, caress it, lift it up and examine its underside, pop it in your pocket, slip it in your wallet, tuck it behind the sunvisor or wear it with pride cushioned by chest hair on your favourite gold necklace. Almost

Its the Maiden Capital-Pullinger Readhead Lucas M1As mojo, and its finally in sight after deserting us this season.

Or did we desert it?

Were we trying too hard? Did we lack that inward commitment, coupled with that exterior nonchalance that said 'we just don't care if we live or die' - when we really did? Did our belief in ourselves leave us, stranded on the stock route of failed finals campaigns? Has complacency replaced determination, like tyranny over ran Zimbabwean democracy?

Whatever the case - and how ever much it gets argued in the UN security council - our mojo is on layby and available for pick-up as soon as we can afford to get it.

As the BAD captain, I can't tell you what a relief this is. Its been too many nights in the disco trying to find it. I'm exhausted.

MP

Like the true Promo girls that we are, we went out to play in style. That's right, our new shirts finally arrived how many weeks into the season?!

Light, cool and sleeves that don't need to be rolled up from the elbow. We may not have the fancy law firm sponsorship, but we have his wife. S-coach (Reagan's new nick name that I think he may have given himself) even put numbers on the back of our super-cool new shirts. We chose our own numbers, which is why we have from 1 to 77 (who chooses 77, I mean really...they must be Tasmanian!).

It's lucky we looked good because there were two cameras filming our game. Our Bec who was too sick to play directed one. She decided she has no career in filmmaking and better get her ass (sorry children, elders and ladies) back on the turf soon. Our mascot Brutus was there heading the cheer squad. He must have doubled in size in the past two weeks!

Sarah scored our first goal fairly early in the game. At the other end, Donella had some awesome saves defending our goals. By half time Lakers matched us 1-1. We had dropped to a bottom of the ladder playing level and at half time the S.C let us know how bad we were in the pep talk. We decided no win; no drinks and spa back at Jo's after the game. That is a threat that is not taken lightly!

In the second half we brought back the half court press, which helped us to control the game and gave us plenty of turnovers. Our forwards pushed higher and the whole team showed character by stepping it up a few levels. Sarah scored another goal and our short corners were looking good.

We played as a team (funny how that can win games) the end result 2-1 to us. Just as well because then it was on to Jo's house for a well-deserved spa, which was really blissful until, the S.C ruined it with a run up bomb-ee entry...yes just like the beer add! There was water everywhere, including in the wine glasses. Weren't happy, very funny though. Thanks Jo for providing the venue and organizing pizza, esky etc. You are a champ!

Metro 2 Black Women Team Report

Our season is going along quite nicely on all fronts. New players this season, Bonnie, Naomi, Rebecca, Grace, Hoona and Peg have not only livened up our social interaction but they are all pretty decent hockey players as well. We have managed to train on a Thursday night, a first for us, which has definitely helped the quality of play on Saturdays. We've won 3 and lost 4 and sit about 4th on the ladder.

Highlights so far:

- Beth, Emma and Peg falling down – there have been others but these were the best!
- Sharon's sexy side split shorts.
- Vicki's ball in the nose – ouch thanks for all who helped in patching up.
- Emma's stick imprint on the inner thigh – it was a beauty
- Angie getting the Subs spectator to clean up not only one but two dog poos before the game could start.
- Georgie – every week back line entertainment.
- Spectators/supporters – yes we have them every week, suspect they also come for the drinks post game.
